1. Since early 1951 the community of Carev Dvor, Resan District, has been composed of the following villages: Perovo, with 75 families; Carev Dvor, with 300 families; and Drmeni, with 150 families. The population is Orthodox with the exception of 50 families in Carev Dvor and about 30 families in Drmeni, who are Albanian Moslems. The officials of the community were: Krume Tasnki, chairman; Vera Jovanova, administrator; and Ilia Rimanovski and Mice Tanevski, secretaries.
2. There were twelve members in the Communist Party cell in Perovo and the political secretary was Hriste Pecelevski. The village had a four-year elementary school.
3. In 1946 a fishermen's cooperative was established in Perovo, but in early 1949 the cooperative was taken over by the collective and named "Ribar". At this time all the peasants were forced to join the collective. The collective had six agricultural brigades, one fishermen's brigade, and about 350 sheep and 160 cattle. There were no agricultural machines. The fishermen's brigade, composed of 25 men, had the necessary nets and two fishing boats. The amount of fish caught during the year amounted to 10,000 kilos, and the price of fish was 30 to 60 dinars per kilo.
4. The following were the staff members of the collective: chairman, Vasil Cirilovski; manager, Gerogi Pecovski; bookkeeper, Traian Blatovski; and warehouse manager, Naume Numeshevski.
5. In 1951 each working member of the collective received 250 kilograms of grain, old people 190 kilograms, and children 72 to 160 kilograms. Since the members of the Perovo collective had not been in three years, there were no requests to withdraw from the collective.
